

Abstract

In order to protect in particular the exposed areas of the chassis of a bicycle trailer against wear and tear from friction and impacts, at least one bumper is provided, which is positioned on the outside of a frame part of the chassis and extends past the outside of the frame of the chassis in at least one direction.